

House reflections

523 South Hyannis Port St

We have lived in and loved this house since 1989. We purchased the lot next to us and later turned it into an oasis in 2014. Newport subdivision has been the best kept secret in the Houston area. We love the trees, squirrels, and other wildlife and our neighbors are like family. Our house may not be the biggest house in the neighborhood but the open concept, cathedral ceilings, and natural light coming through the 8 ft. high front window and triple French doors that open to the back deck make it seem spacious. Even though blinds in the front window stay open during the day, the layout of the house gives complete privacy. Our backyard is not only beautiful but is an oasis for hummingbirds and butterflies that come to drink the nectar and lay their eggs. Plants were chosen specifically for that purpose and luckily most of these plants are hearty perennials which will come back every spring. The goldfish pond and waterfall draw dragonflies, toads, frogs, and birds which create a natural environment that minimizes pests and provides endless entertainment. In cooler weather, one can open the French doors, listen to the waterfall, and enjoy dinner. The swimming pool is a fiberglass, inground pool with a salt generator and is very easy to maintain. We know that whoever buys this house will grow to love it and the neighborhood as much as we have for the past 32 years.
