Owner summary concerning slop in the hallway leading into the master bedroom.

This slope is by design into the master, when we redid the floors, replacing the carpet that was there with hardwood we found a wooden ramp that we assume was for someone who was in a wheelchair. Since the white room and the master bed are an addition to the original home, build in the early 70's (been told by neighbors) with the very far back creative space being added sometime in the early 80's (once again from next door neighbors who owned home since it was built in 57)

We replaced the wood ramp with poured concrete to keep the existing slope instead of having a step down similar to the white room step.
