

5701 Bayway Drive Property Description

Details/Description:

Imagine worries of the day slipping away as you turn onto your driveway canopied by mature pecan trees. A spacious place of refuge is what you will find at this charming residence in need of your care and keen eye. The lush, deep front yard ends at the solid red brick home set far away from the road, and high above the serenity of Scott Bay. A sweeping panorama of the bay from the backyard enhances the property's feeling of peace with views of the Fred Hartman Bridge in the distance, and the skyline of downtown Houston seen just beyond the base of the San Jacinto Monument. Step into this home of character that is enhanced by lovely wood trimming and hardwood flooring in the dining room, upstairs bedrooms, and hallway. Downstairs carpeting can be removed to reveal original wood flooring, also. Because the house was built in mid-1941 and prior to WWII, there is solid wood construction throughout. The flagstoned den/sunroom has large floor to ceiling windows that frame gorgeous views of the deep front yard, the back yard, and Scott Bay attractions mentioned earlier. The antique blue and cream kitchen can be easily transformed with paint and imagination. Alas, this beautiful property located on an acre of land in a quiet neighborhood of good people awaits you to transform it into the home of your dreams, so don't delay.
