Thank you for your interest in my home--it has been in the family since 2008 and I will miss it dearly.

Why am I selling this amazing house? It was a very difficult decision for me to make. The lake is beautiful, the view out the back of the house is unreal and the vibe in the home is calm and serene. The neighborhood is amazing, and I have never experienced a better July 4th celebration. From the children's fishing derby at the crack of dawn, to the parade and pancake breakfast, to the boat parade and finally the nighttime fireworks display, you will not find a better way to spend your 4th of July!

Personally, I am divorced with two teenage daughters and work in Houston. Unfortunately, I have not been able to maintain the property the way it needs and deserves. My family and friends have made unbelievable memories and enjoyed years of fun on the water. The best things about the yard are the park next door and the swim island behind the house. With the pylons and buoys, you have your own private swim area and do not have to worry about safety while floating and hanging out in the water.

Since I am selling the house "as is" I wanted to outline all the known issues as best I can so you can make an informed decision.

Both air conditioner units were replaced in 2016, a new roof was installed in 2022. The water heater was replaced in 2023.

Oven - Cook Top - The unit was purchased used and really should be replaced. The oven thermostat intermittently faults and causes the oven to turn off. For stove top cooking, there is an issue with the ignitor. You have to turn on the back left burner to light. Once it begins clicking, turn the dial of the burners to get them to light. I do not use it often, so I never replaced it.

Pool - The pool is not currently operational. The pump is new and was installed last year after a freeze the prior winter cracked the pipes on the old unit. The filter is only 3 years old. I have purchased new media and chemicals to get the pool operational. I will leave everything for the new owner if I cannot get it operational before it sells. Although the lake is amazing and fun, the water does get very warm in the summer. The pool however, stays cool and of course, the water (when operational) is clean and clear.

There is a water spicket / outside shower on the east side of the house. The line froze last winter and has been capped off. The new owner can re-plumb a shower if they choose--it's nice to have an option to rinse the lake water off after you get out of the lake.

The aerobic system/tanks in the front yard are higher than the lowest plumbing in the home. Rain runoff can enter the system and has caused water to enter the house on a few occasions. When severe weather is expected I pump the system out manually to ensure the tanks do not overflow and cause water to enter the house. The system automatically pumps out every night at midnight. We had septic contractors and plumbers come out and evaluate the issue--they inspected both systems and recommended a french drain in the front yard to redirect any water coming down the slope of the yard to the sides of the home. My ex-husband put in a small french drain on the porch and it has helped but not completely fixed the issue. A french drain is needed to redirect water to the sides of the home.

I am required to maintain flood insurance on the home but do not know which category the property falls into.

There is a pocket door to the half bath downstairs. That door is warped from the water issue identified above.

My family has owned this home since 2008 and it has never flooded due to storms or hurricanes. During Harvey the lake level rose so high the water came in the yard to the pool but no higher. During Harvey however, the rain was so hard at one point and came at the house horizontally for long enough that it caused water to enter the attic vents which resulted in water damage to the ceilings in the garage game room/shop. After the hurricane I had it inspected and no damage was noted. The roof has since been replaced.

Last year the upstairs air conditioner drain clogged, and water leaked onto the floor upstairs. This caused the water damage to the downstairs ceiling near the entry. The air conditioner unit is in the master bedroom closet and there are drip pans under the system to prevent recurrence. Access to the pans and drain is inside the air return vent (under the thermostat) in the master bedroom.

The gas log fireplace operates on a thermostat, and I use it to heat the home in the winter. If the air is circulating downstairs (fans), the heat travels upstairs. I tend to keep it cold in the home, but I prefer it that way. You may think it's necessary to use the heaters.

The large wall air conditioner in the game room is not operational. If I do not sell the home, I have plans to install mini split units for the game room and large bedroom over the garage. Neither room was occupied until September 2023 so there has not been a need for a permanent solution.

The deck is aging, and sections require attention/repair.

The boat lift is operational but gauging by its age alone, I'm sure it needs attention or to be serviced. I will leave the canoe and paddle board, but the boat will be removed from the property.

I have had the trees checked and had several removed over the years. The remaining trees are healthy as far as I am aware.

I am on level pay for electricity through MidSouth and it runs $260 per month--year-round. Unfortunately, there is no choice for providers out here. Not to get political, but during the previous administration it was $190 year-round, and I keep the house at a comfortable 70 degrees 2/3 of the year...

Water fluctuates but is reasonable. I have an automatic payment of $40 a month and every 6 months I skip a payment because I end up with a credit. There is also a separate $25 monthly charge for main waterline replacement/repairs that were completed throughout the neighborhood. I am unsure when that assessment will end.

HOA fees are $500 per year and due by March 31st. They have been paid for 2024.

I currently pay $40 a month to Bailey's Trash Service (936.597.6702). They pick up on Monday and Thursday. The HOA pays for a heavy trash day twice a year as well.

I have Optimum for internet service, and it costs $96.72 a month (including taxes and fees).

The water heater, stove and fireplace run on natural gas. That service is through CenterPoint Energy. Even during cold spells while running the fireplace and heaters, the gas has never exceeded $150 per month.

I use T-Mobile for cell service and have never had an issue with service.

I do not have cable but use an Amazon Firestick and have various subscriptions for digital entertainment—we do not have any issues with the television and multiple people streaming on devices simultaneously.
